About 2-1-1 San Diego's Volunteer of the Year

This year, 2-1-1 San Diego is proud to recognize Brian Baker, Vice President of Technology at QUALCOMM Incorporated. A QUALCOMM Incorporated staff member for over 21 years, Brian is responsible for the worldwide management and implementation of the company's information technology infrastructure and operations.

For more than 4 years, Brian has been a 2-1-1 champion, beginning during the 2007 Firestorm when he lead QUALCOMM response to 2-1-1's call for community support. Today Brian remains a dedicated member of the 2-1-1 Board of Directors. Brian has worked tirelessly to connect the organization's leadership to partnership opportunities and help 2-1-1 evaluate and identify technology solutions that best suit the growing organization. He actively participates in 2-1-1 activities such as securing more than 24 sponsors in 2 years for the 2-1-1's annual events, becoming one of a hundred elite 2-1-1 Disaster Response Team volunteers and consistently connecting community leaders to the organization. In addition, as a United States Air Force veteran and a proud member of the VFW, Brian strongly supports 2-1-1's goal to partner with community organizations to better serve and connect military service members, veterans and their families to critical resources they need.

We are humbled by Brian's volunteer support and dedication to seeing 2-1-1 continue to grow in our community. Thanks to Brian, 2-1-1 continues to put community resources at the fingertips of all San Diegans.

The Henry Haimsohn Volunteer of the Year Award

Named after Henry Haimsohn, the Immediate Past Chair of the 2-1-1 Board of Directors, and a long standing community leader and 2-1-1 volunteer for more than a decade, the Henry Haimsohn Volunteer Award is a distinguished award honoring an outstanding individual for their volunteer support, leadership and dedication to making 2-1-1 a success.
